

Pied Beauty (G.M. Hopkins)

Explanation - 02

And though the last lights off the black west went
 Oh, morning, at the brown brink eastward, spring
 Because the Holy Ghost over bent
 World brooks with warm breast and with ah! bright wings

These present lines are taken from the poem "Pied Beauty" which is a curial sonnet composed by the Victorian poet G.M. Hopkins. The poet has shown his devotion to his God. He says although the sun goes down the western sky and the earth is plunged in darkness, the sun will be seen rising again in the eastern sky. The real source of the renewal of nature is pointed by the poet. This source is Holy Ghost. The poet thinks the Biblical image of Holy Ghost in the form of a dove. He is very surprised to gaze the games of the Holy Ghost. He raises a metaphysical question to the readers that who does it and how does he do it. His immense faith in God comes through these lines. He is enjoying much and awares the readers too. All though it is a natural incidents but, there is a secret among these incidents, so we should feel it.
